AT THE TENT THEATER.

The Harrison Theatrical Company scored another big success Saturday night in "A Story of the Hills." It is a typical western drama, full of excitement, and the several intensely interesting climaxes keep the audience keyed up to the highest pitch. There is just enough romance interspersed to give the play zest and added charm.

Tonight they open their third weeks engagement in a four act Commercial Play of the Day: "Mr. Graham of New York." The scene of the plot is in New York, an every day scene and example of Wall street. Mr. Graham is to everybody except those who are associated with him every day in his own house, a hard man to deal with, being unwilling to yield to anyone, and expecting everybody else to give up to him, and even then he is not satisfied. He has been left a widower with a son to raise, and from the time of the death of his wife he had lived an isolated life in the city of New York, his only hope and desire being to see his son do well, and marry the girl of his father's choice, his ward, allowing his son no preference whatever. The son, however, fell in love with a lady that he feared would not please his father, so knowing his father's disposition and determination, married the girl secretly and when the secret was discovered the young man and his bride were turned out into the world almost penniless. One of the men in the father's office, taking advantage of such an opportunity changed the accounts as kept by young Mr. Graham, so as to show a great shortage and charging Graham with the deficiency. The elder Mr. Graham was particularly in doubt all the while as to the guilt of his son and when a discovery was made showing that a page of the ledger had been torn out and duplicated, he allowed his son to look over the accounts as he had kept them, the original sheet being found and returned by a young newsboy, the son was forgiven and taken back to be associated with the Graham firm.

The play is very entertaining, the comedy features keeping the audience amused all during the performance, and the interest increases with every act.

A. & M. DEFEATED AUSTIN COLLEGE

FARMERS OUTWEIGHED, OUT-
PLAYED AND OUTCLASSED
VISITING TEAM IN EVERY PARTICULAR.

CAPT. HAMILTON THE STAR

A. and M. Has Splendid Material and
Will Develop Strongest Team for Years.

A and M. College opened what promises to be the most successful football season of her history by defeating Austin College of Sherman by a score of 17 to 0. The visitors were totally outclassed in weight, their average being scarcely 160 while A. and M. will go close to 180. Although the work was rather ragged A. and M.'s back field is showing up very well indeed, and Hamilton is starting as usual. Twice he booted the ball over the bar, and once ran with it fifty yards for a touchdown. The other touchdown came after hard bucking, the visitors fumbling the ball on their own ten yard line. The Austin College bunch are nervy and put up a great defense, but were no match for the fast and heavy defenders of the Crimson and White. They could not stop the runners when they tackled and could not form their plays on their offense before their interference was broken. Their only long gains were on forward passes which they handled nicely. Each team put in several subs, A. and M. replacing 5 of their regulars and Austin College three. The new men showed up splendidly. The star of the game was Hamilton whose wonderful drop kicking and fast runs around the end created a continuous sensation. McDonald at quarter was also fast and effective in the second half. Taylor showed up well at half, and the entire line had little trouble holding. Rugel carried the ball nicely but was all to the bad on returning punts, the A. C. ends getting him in his tracks. A. and M. was also weak on end, the men going down slowly on punts and failing to block their opposing ends. Finding that they could not form their interference against A. and M., the visitors resorted largely to kicking and forward passes. McDaniel at quarter was fast and punted well. Gillespie and Moore, both very light men, started at ends, and Mebane broke through A. and M.'s big line more than once, at one time blocking one of Hamilton's drop kicks, and another tackling the runner for a loss. A. and M. did very little with A. C.'s line, making first down only twice through them. Their ground gaining plays were largely quick formation half around end, and quarter runs with strong inside interference. Taken all around, the visitors were outclassed in weight and speed. A. and M. has abundant material and with hard practice and good training should take the scalps of their old rivals the University. Their chief weakness is in their defense on kicks and forward passes, and on end work.

The game was called at 4:05. A. and M. received the kick defending the east goal. Hamilton took the ball but was downed within five yards. A. and M. kicked and McDaniel was downed before he was fairly started. For nearly fifteen minutes, the game was largely a punting duel. At one time Hamilton booted the ball fully seventy yards. A. and M. tried one forward pass but the ball hit the ground and they were penalized. McDonald tried a bucking game in the center field, and after carrying it about twenty yards, A. and M. was held for downs. At this juncture it seemed as if the game would be close, as the A. C.'s ends were getting into the game and getting the runners behind the line. But within five minutes of the close of the first half, Hamilton took the ball on A. C.'s fifty yard line, and behind magnificent interference, went down the field for a touchdown. Goal was kicked. By outpunting A. C. A. and M. worked the ball down within kicking distance and Hamilton sent one high over the bar for a field goal. The half ended without further scoring.

In the second half, after about five minutes of play, A. and M. got possession of the ball, and on half back runs around the end, drove the visitors to their ten yard line where successive bucks put the ball over, Rugel going for a touchdown over center and guard. A. and M. chose to punt out and McDonald failed to make the

A FREAK EAR OF CORN.

Sam Gaines an industrious farmer of the Wixon creek neighborhood brought to the Eagle office Saturday a curiosity in the way of an ear of corn that was grown on his farm. One side of the ear was perfectly white and the other side was blood red. White ears of corn with red grains mixed in are common, but not half white and half red.
